dānyā subst. ‘judge’ ወእመሰ፡ ትፈቅዱ፡ ሙብልዐ፡ ሐሩ፡ ኅበ፡ መምህር፡ ወእማኮ፡ ኅበ፡ ዳንያ፡ ‘And if you desire food, go to the master or else to the judge’ Tedros Abraha 2015, 142 (438) l. 1-2 (ed.); 143 (439) l. 1-2 (tr.) (“The form danəya {...} does not feature in Gəʿəz lexica and appears to be closer to Təgrəñña. Dillmann 1865, 1127, registers däyani {vid. ደያኒ፡} “judge”... For dañña, attested from the first half of the 16th century “as a title for the office of the ‘keeper, overseer’, or ‘guardian’ bestowed by the abbot of the congregation in Ewostəatean monasteries,” cf. ‘Dañña’, EAe, II (2005), 90b–91a (Aberra Jembere).’ Tedros Abraha 2015, 143 (439) n. 308)
